September—the ideal tourist month in Vermont!

Dartmouth's football warriors began practice to-day. We call that preparation.

General Joffre has been nibbling so long he must feel the need of taking a full bite.

George Gess of New York, who offers Theodore Roosevelt $10,000 to shoulder a gun and fight for the allies, has another one coming.

Here's to a good and profitable visit to the Pacific coast by Governor Gates! May he return reinvigorated by his little vacation!

Judging by the reports at Chester this week, Universalism is tending more to live up to its name in Vermont and Province of Quebec.

One by one, the returning German submarines deny they had anything to do with the sinking of the Arabic. Afraid of being spanked? Or part of a scheme?

The filing of the Thaw divorce suit threatens to keep a noisome matter before the public some years longer. The name of Thaw is getting some persistent advertising. But such advertising!

Serbia may have changed her name from Servia, but apparently she is still subservient to the wishes of the entente allies when it comes to surrendering territory to Bulgaria in return for the latter's participation against Germany, Austria and Turkey.

From Vallejo, Cal., comes the following request:

"If you will kindly accept and make use of the enclosed 'Message' for the benefit of the country, and kindly withhold my name, you will greatly oblige."

We have. It kept us warm for about two seconds.

"Germany's Surrender Complete," says a contemporary's news heading. When Germany does completely surrender its policy to the United States' demand, it will be a very odd day over in Berlin; and the weather is likely to be moderately warm there for many years to come. There may be concession, but there will never be complete surrender, that is, without some strings attached. Of that we American people may be assured. Meanwhile, what is the sense of deluding ourselves?

Those pro-German newspapers printed in the United States which exulted, or quietly felt a sense of satisfaction when the Lusitania was sunk with more than 1,000 neutral civilians, will have a hard time reconciling themselves to the new position alleged to have been assumed by the Berlin government regarding the attack by German submarines on passenger ships of belligerent nations. And, too, that newspaper in Germany which declared the sinking of the Lusitania, without warning to its passengers, was a great naval feat must be hard put to it to understand the reported change of attitude by the Kaiser's government. The time for such barbaric attitude and utterances following the Lusitania tragedy is passing, one has reason to hope.

The testimony of men who have viewed the country and the industries from Vermont to California and then again from California to Vermont as they motored along—their testimony that they saw, possibly, only one place where farming appealed more to them than it does in Vermont ought to go far toward satisfying those discontented Vermont farmers who are looking for other places. Such is the testimony which the Camps of East Randolph bring back after their double trans-continental trip to the coast of California, during which they took occasion to inspect the methods of farming in many states. Incidentally, it seems that Barre granite and Rutland marble are two of the best advertised products of the entire United States, the knowledge of the products extending to nearly every place where the Vermonters stopped and conversed with the people.

DANGER SIGNS ON VERMONT HIGHWAYS.

A narrow escape from fatal automobile accident near the village of Manchester when the machine failed to complete a turn in the road and plunged into the Hattenkill river calls attention that some properly constituted authority, or some self-appointed agent, ought to place warning signs at such sharp turns in the road so that automobile drivers who are not acquainted with the highway may take proper precautions by slowing their machines. To be sure, a large measure of responsibility rests on the drivers of motor vehicles, but it is really up to them to drive so carefully that they will be able to avoid disaster to themselves or to other users of the roads. Nevertheless, it is a great aid toward that careful driving to be warned at the approaches to dangerous turns and narrow strips of highway by means of signs such as many towns, or the Automobile Club of Vermont or auto accessory advertisers are setting in position. Such an aid to safety is greatly appreciated by the motoring public, particularly by those who are not acquainted with the road. The assistance also is evidence to out of state motorists that they are welcome in Vermont and that they will be treated in good fashion. Moreover, it is an indication that the regions supplied with warning signs are not so far in the backwoods as to be all but disassociated from the quicker current of life in the more populous states. The traveler in a region that is destitute of direction signs and warning signs feels himself so far removed from that quicker current of life that he is not content to tarry long. Hence, those regions lose quite a bit of patronage.

CURRENT COMMENT

Furor Teutonicus.

Madison's remark, that while every Athenian citizen might have been a philosopher, all Athenian citizens were a mob, seems adaptable to the German nation. Individually, they are among the most estimable people in the world. Collectively, under some inexplicable malign influence, they seem possessed of a furor which outrages humanity. Nor is this any new thing. Whatever may have been its origin, it has long existed and has frequently been observed and remarked upon by Germans themselves as well as the rest of the world.

"I fear Germany is lost," said Luther, four centuries ago. "It cannot be otherwise, for they will employ nothing but the sword." History tells how fearfully the sword was indeed used thereafter, until Germany was the shambles of the world. Later, in recent generations, Germans of light and leading have exulted in, defended and glorified the employment of "nothing but the sword." Historians like Niebuhr, Mommsen, Ranke, Sybel and others colored all their writings to exploit the philosopher Hegel's savage dogma, that "bloody battles are the struggle of moral energy." For generations militarism for its own sake has been ingrained into the German people.

What was the outcome? More than a generation ago, during the Franco-German war of 1870, one of the keenest sighted and most thoughtful of journalists, the late Lawrence G. Godkin, spoke of the consciousness which everybody begins to have, that to put such an engine of destruction as the German army into operation, there must be behind it some new law of motive power. "We are witnessing the application to military affairs of the whole intelligence of a nation of great mental and moral culture. * * * A nation organized in this way is a new phenomenon, and is worth study. It gives one a glimpse of possibilities in the future of modern civilization of which few people have hitherto dreamed, and it must be confessed that the prospect is not altogether pleasing."

Those possibilities which Godkin saw with prophetic eye more than 40 years ago are now being realized. The world sees what it means for a great nation, of the highest intellectual and industrial development, to be supremely organized for war, and to be possessed of a lust for war and for universal conquest. It is a phenomenon which surpasses even that which Rome presented in the days of Caesar. The culmination of centuries of warlike culture and preparation is the most gigantic war the world has ever seen, waged for the sake of war. We shall see whether the cult outlasts the crisis which it has precipitated.—Boston Transcript.

NEW TEACHERS AT M. S.

There Will be Four When Fall Term Opens on September 14.

When the fall term of Montpelier seminary commences the 14th of this month, there will be four new members of the faculty to succeed those who resigned at the end of the spring term.

Miss Florence Southward Hinckley of Everett, Mass., has been engaged to teach English and elocution, succeeding Miss Albertson. The new teacher was educated at the Emerson college of oratory, Boston, and has taught expression at Morgan Memorial in Boston and has appeared as a reader for the White entertainment bureau.

Prof. Sumner A. Dole of Shelburne, Mass., will have charge of athletics and will teach science and mathematics. He was graduated from the Massachusetts agricultural college last spring. For three years he played varsity football and was captain of the basketball team and prominent in baseball and hockey.

Miss L. Casandra Aldrich of Lebanon, N. H., has been secured to succeed Miss Myrtle A. Mosier as preceptor, and she comes to the seminary highly recommended for the position, having enjoyed much experience in New York state. She was graduated from Mount Holyoke college in 1904.

The new vocal instructor secured is Miss Eleanor Pepper Sands, a graduate of Bates college in 1908. She also studied for four years in the Whitney international school for vocalists. She is an experienced teacher of voice and is from the same school as Miss Virginia C. Peter, whom she succeeds.

Dr. J. W. Hatch, the principal, is confident that the new registration at the opening of the term will be exceptionally large, but a small total increase is all that is looked for because of the fact that an unusually large class was graduated last June.

Miss Lou Mae Dutton Bride of W. W. Worcester of Hollis, N. H.

A quiet wedding took place last evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob F. Dutton, 65 College street, when their daughter, Lou F. Dutton, was united in marriage to William Warren Worcester of Hollis, N. H., in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. A. Flint, rector of Christ church. They were attended by Miss Ruth G. Dutton, a sister of the bride, as maid of honor and Harold S. Hobart of Proctor, a college classmate of the groom. The bride was attractively gowned in white crepe de chine, wearing a veil and orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of the lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore orchid colored crepe de meteor, and carried roses.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor which was prettily trimmed with golden rod and maidenhair ferns and the adjoining room was decorated with sweet peas and ferns.

The bride is a graduate of Montpelier high school and was graduated from Middlebury college in 1912. For the past two years she has been a member of the faculty of Hollis high school. Mr. Worcester is engaged in business in his native town, being a member of the firm of Flagg and Worcester. He was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1908. They will reside in Hollis after a short wedding trip.

Levanus were assessed $5 and costs each and the two men paid, and Mrs. Sanders expressed the belief that she would be able to raise the necessary amount. They were arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief of Police Connolly on warrants issued by Grand Juror Theriault, the party being found in the tenement of Mrs. Sanders in the Lane block on East State street. Along with the trio the police took a quantity of whiskey found in a quart bottle.

Mrs. Harvey Hodges, who has been passing a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Moran, in this city, left this morning for her home in Hartford, Conn.

WATERBURY

The historical pageant, as prepared by Rev. W. L. Boicourt, to be given under the auspices of the Waterbury lecture and entertainment bureau, is creating much interest. A pleasant, interesting and instructive time is expected on the evening of Labor day. The scenes for the pageant are as follows: First, the Indian hunting party camps on the site before the founding of the town. Fire will be made with rubbing sticks. There will be Indian songs and dances, and campfire scenes. Second, Mr. Marsh in 1783 alone in the wilderness. He husks corn and prepares to return to New Hampshire. Third, three of the Marsh children having been left here from a previous visit, Mr. Marsh returns with the rest of the family. He meets the first cow in Waterbury. The Marsh scenes are in charge of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. LeBaron. Fourth, Ezra Butler and bride arrive on horseback. They are welcomed by the Marsh family. This is in charge of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Moody. Fifth comes the organization of the town meeting, March 31, 1790. The present representative from this town, Henry F. Hill, will act as moderator. Some of the exciting things which actually occurred in the first town meeting will be depicted. Sixth, ten years later. The dinner hour at a neighborhood barn raising. The young people make merry with the barn dance, in charge of Arthur Bailey, with Raymond Buzzell, violinist. The children play games, among others, "London bridge is falling down." These will be in charge of Miss Mary Gupit. Seventh, a company of recruits drill and march to the front in the 60's. The average age of these is the same as of those who actually took part from here in the Civil war. The recruits will be in charge of Max Ayers and Alton Wheeler; Silas Dady, fife, and Frank Carpenter, drummer. Following this, an address will be given by Supt. D. D. Grout. The program closes with the singing of "America" by the company, led by E. G. Miller with W. B. Clark on the cornet. The story of the pageant will be told by Mr. Boicourt through a megaphone. A rehearsal of those in the Indian scene is called in the woods back of the Demeritt company's factory at 1:30 Friday. All children between nine and fourteen are also requested to meet on the schoolhouse grounds at 2:30 Friday to practice the games.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Perkins, Frank Towne, Mr. and Mrs. Eldredge, Dr. Foster, Representative H. F. Hill of Waterbury, Representative Demeritt of Duxbury, and Representative Levey of Stowe were in Warren Tuesday to attend the funeral of O. M. Jones, who represented Warren in the last legislature.

Mrs. W. L. Wasson has returned from a delightful motor trip through the White mountains and to Old Orchard, Maine. To-day Dr. and Mrs. Wasson went to Lake Mansfield for a week's stay.

Mr. Murray of Washington, D. C., is a guest of his sister, Mrs. William Hayes.
